Florida International University (FIU) is Miami-Dade County’s first public, four-year research university. With more than 48,000 students, 1,000+ full-time faculty members, and more than 155,000 alumni, FIU is one of South Florida’s anchor institutions. FIU offers more than 180 bachelor, master and doctoral degree programs in its colleges and schools. Recently, the university has achieved several notable milestones, including the establishment of South Florida’s only public College of Medicine, and the accreditation of its College of Law.

About the College of Arts & Sciences
As the heart of a leading public research university, the College of Arts and Sciences plays a vital role in the intellectual, cultural and civic life of local, national and international communities. The college provides an educational foundation that prepares FIU students to be successful and engaged citizens in a global society.

About the School of International and Public Affairs
The School of International and Public Affairs (SIPA) brings together many of FIU’s internationally oriented disciplines to provide cutting-edge research, first-rate teaching and innovative training necessary for the globalized world of the 21st Century. SIPA includes eight signature departments: Politics and International Relations, Religious Studies, Global and Sociocultural Studies, Public Administration, Criminal Justice, Modern Languages, Economics and History. The School is home to many of the university’s most prominent international centers, institutes and programs.
